Is there a Method to Outpouring?
Anniversary Reflections on the Asbury Outpouring
by Kenny R. Johnston

As I write, it is the one-year anniversary of when I stepped into Hughes Auditorium for the first time. The “Asbury outpouring” had begun two days prior. I had spent the previous day at an academic gathering in Indiana where some were discussing the outpouring in surprisingly pessimistic ways. For instance, a well-known former bishop stood up and remarked sarcastically that we should try to reproduce the circumstances surrounding the outpouring so as to have our own results. Everyone chuckled. Similarly, a paper had been presented that warned against the “revivalism” that arose from the awakening of the Wesley era.

I disagreed with those assessments then, and I disagree with similar assessments now, a year after having experienced the outpouring myself. In what follows I offer a more optimistic assessment that is unapologetically methodist, meaning that there is a method to outpouring. Not only do I believe that the Asbury outpouring was an authentic move of God, but I believe that it ought to serve as a model for normative Christian pursuit through the means of grace. If there is any failure with regard to the outpouring, it is that we have already moved on instead of leaning in.

Easter is approaching, and as many of you know, we have an Easter Egg Hunt for the children and youth along with a Resurrection Message from the Pastor. This year, it will be held on March 30th at 10 am with a light lunch immediately following.

If anyone would like to donate candy, prizes, or coins to go in the eggs, it would be greatly appreciated. You can drop the items off at the church office or items can be given to Christine Flaningam. Also, if anyone could help with cleanup after lunch, please show up around 11 am. Thanks so much everyone!
